RCMP to crack down on noisy parties

By Steve Fletcher
The problem of noisy parties heats up along with the weather.

RCMP Cpl. Tom Turner says spring and summer are for obvious reasons the time when most infractions of the town's noise bylaw take place.

"This time of year there are one or two cases a weekend. We're prosecuting some—generally the penalty is within the $100 to $300 range.

"Often there are three or four places in town that become known as party places," Turner said.

But he stressed the police can't act on their own initiative to break up the parties; it requires residents' complaints.

Once a complaint is received, a three-step process is used to eradicate the alleged contravention of the bylaw.

The first step is to warn the boisterous party-goers.

The second step, if the noise continues, is to issue a ticket to the owner of the house under the noise bylaw.

The final step is to invoke Criminal Code provisions allowing for the arrest (for disturbing the peace) or dispersal of those at the party.

Turner emphasized that each step must be initiated by a citizen's complaint.

Turner, who wrote the bylaw six years ago, has yet to go to the final step.

And he added that much of the burden for bringing the offenders to justice is placed on the shoulders of the citizens, as the police can't be everywhere at the same time.

"At this time of year, towards summer, we are continuously receiving complaints about erratic driving. We encourage citizens to file complaints—get the license number and we'll charge them if there are reasonable and probable grounds.

"Last week, we had two such cases and both offenders were charged."

Mill open house

Staff at Sturdy Wood are expecting a good turnout for their open house on Thursday.

The public is invited to tour the new strand board plant between noon and 5 p.m. The tours are part of National Forest Week.

A spokesman at the mill last week said hundreds of people showed up when Al Owen opened his plant at Edson.

For safety reasons, visitors at the mill must be at least 16 years of age and must be fitted with appropriate footwear. That means no high heels.

Cute kiddies

Judges were faced with a difficult task choosing a winner from a collection of photos featuring adorable antics and angelic expressions of local children.

However, the winning poses in the Drayton Valley Lionses' Cute Kid Contest were on display in the Derrick Mall for proud parents and spectators to see.

First place went to Brenda Miller of Alder Flats for her submission, while Bonnie Thomson of Drayton Valley captured second.

Honorable mentions went to Ann Schwalbe, Shirley Brooks, Bonnie Thomson and Brenda Miller.

The winning photos will be on display at the Toronto Dominion Bank.

'Unstable' condition

By Carolyn Vesely

Semi-conscious and battling a fever in Edmonton's Royal Alexandra hospital, Jamie Platz is having his "ups and downs" according to his mother Gail.

"Right now Jamie's very unstable," she told The Western Review last Wednesday.

"The day before (Tuesday) we didn't think he'd make it," she said, explaining Jamie's temperature rose to 105 degrees.

With the help of cold compresses on his forehead, Gail said Jamie's temperature dropped to 103 degrees.

The Drayton Valley hospital board, administration and medical staff are presently assessing the requirements to care for Jamie if and when he is transferred to hospital here.

"They've never had a patient like Jamie in the Drayton Valley hospital before," said Gail, "but the nurses there are learning trachea care."

A delegation of doctors, nurses, the inservice coordinator, and director of patient care recently visited Jamie at the Royal Alexandra, said Drayton Valley hospital administrator Jim Janzen.

He explained that the delegation is trying to determine what equipment and special care Jamie will require if moved to Drayton Valley hospital.

"When all the requirements are attainable, all parties involved will be making a joint decision."

In a recent development over the weekend, Jamie's grandmother Vi Skates told an Edmonton paper Jamie's condition is worsening.

She said he is too sick to be moved to Drayton Valley hospital as originally planned and told reporters she feels it's just a matter of time.

Medical personnel at the Royal Alexandra cancelled plans to transfer Jamie here after he developed further breathing problems.

Town unity makes bowl-a-thon a success

By Carolyn Vesely
Drayton Valley residents did themselves proud over the weekend.

United in a common cause, people from all sectors of the town donated time, energy and talent to the Shangri La Bowl-a-thon to raise an estimated $40,415 toward a new bus for the residents of the seniors' lodge.

"It was an overwhelming success," said coordinator Gail Biedler who has been planning the event since February.

"The town really pulled together. It shows that a lot of people want the seniors to have that bus."

Biedler said exact figures are not available yet as sponsor sheets must be rechecked for errors and a few bowlers forgot to bring theirs.

However, she reports the brunch at the Legion brought in $815 while the 'bus' donation container held another $1,100.

League bowlers who bowled their fund-raising game last week added between $11,000 and $12,000.

It was a well-fed crowd that witnessed the kick-off to the bowl-a-thon which featured a parade of 'celebrity bowlers' from the Legion to Twilight Bowl.

Heading the line-up were "Ripley," the town mascot, and The Drayton Valley Pipe and presidents of the Legion, Lions and other service clubs and all the seniors planning to bowl.

"The parade really gave me the goose bumps," Biedler said. "The whole town was represented. It felt great." Entertainment back at the Legion kept the hall full all day until the final set played its last song at about 11:30 p.m.

When the last game had been bowled and calculators had ceased clicking up totals, well after midnight Saturday, Biedler said roughly $24,600 had been raised.

And when the very last pin dropped Sunday, another $2,384 was added to the tally.

Biedler urges everyone who participated in the bowl-a-thon to bring the white copy of their sponsor sheet and money in as soon as possible so a specific total can be calculated.

They may be dropped off at the Shangri La Lodge, Treasury Branch or at Twilight Bowl.

And those bowlers who forgot to bring their sponsor sheets to the alley before 'bowling' their game, please get them to Gail at the Shangri La Lodge right away.

Biedler said she was pleased with the amount of people who volunteered their help throughout the day, starting at the brunch.

It was a success in more ways than just the amount of money raised, she said.

"I don't know what could have possibly gone any better."

This sharply attired gentleman from the Shangri La Lodge shows off his graceful style at Saturday's celebrity game.

Trail riders raise cancer money

By Carolyn Vesely

Last Sunday's warm, sunny weather provided the perfect setting for the fourth annual Trail Ride Against Cancer which raised over $8,500 for cancer research.

A total of 74 riders, ranging in age from six to 64 years of age, came from as far away as Lloydminster to participate in the benefit ride.

To be eligible to participate, riders had to have sponsors willing to make a financial contribution to the Canadian Cancer Society.

A minimum of $25 in donations was required for riders 14 years of age and younger, while riders 15 and over had to collect at least $50.

At about 10 a.m., the cavalcade left from Colleen and Cecil Anderson's farm, located south of Drayton Valley, and headed for the site of the ride, the Mobil Oil West Bank water treatment station.

During the morning, the riders completed an eight-mile trek which took about 3½ hours. A shorter ride was held in the afternoon and covered about six miles over a two-hour period.

Mary Kelly of Tomahawk collected the most pledge dollars for the event, single-handedly raising $605.

The most money collected by a participant 14 years of age and under was $99, brought in by Tyson Utri.

Six-year-old Lindsey Collins was the youngest rider while Lyle Beckett, age 64, was the eldest.

Special guest Sunday was Joyce Campbell, past president of the Canadian Cancer Society out of Edmonton.

One of the ride's organizers, Michelle Urchishyn, said this year's event topped those of past years as it was better organized and attracted more participants.

She sends thanks out to all who volunteered their time and services, and to everyone who supported the event.

Final decision on hold for now

A final decision on the boundaries for the new municipal district has hit another snag.

Ian Wight, a researcher with municipal affairs, says the final decision isn't expected before the end of the month.

Last week his department was busy writing up the reports from the recent open houses.

This week municipal affairs is conducting meetings with the groups that will be affected. These include the counties of Parkland, Leduc and Wetaskiwin, ID 14, Breton and the Town of Drayton Valley.

Those two aspects of the study has meant about a two-week delay in the final announcement.

Wight said he was guessing...that a decision would be made in late May.

Strand board mill holds open house...

The new Sturdi Wood strand board plant will have an open house this Thursday as part of National Forest Week. It's an opportunity to ask all those questions you may have, ranging from how many local people (that's people who didn't move in) are employed to reports of dust, ashes and a smell originating from the operation.

Lorne Kvale has some concerns. Kvale, who recently moved his family to town and purchased a home, is wondering whether Drayton Valley and area residents want a furniture store. He's one of the partners in Rocky Furniture. If we want people to invest in the community, they need to be supported.

The word is out...stay off the $225,000 track south of the high school. However, while the public has been told to stay off, school children are using it. Wouldn't a class of kids pounding over the track do more harm than a couple of joggers?

No one seems too surprised at town council's decision to put their arena plans on hold. Actually it's a good idea, giving everyone more time to raise funds and plan exactly what they are going to build.

Veteran councillor Charlie Miner says more information has to get out to town folks on plans for an arena. We second that motion. Up 'til now, the town has said very little.

The Tiggers' recent provincial basketball title was actually a remarkable feat. Here's a team that only played a half-dozen games in preparation for their run at three straight

Alberta titles. Congrats gals.

If the RCMP are looking for something to do, they might take a position on 50th Avenue between Mike's Food Store and St.

Anthony's school, and start writing some speeding tickets. They might also consider ticketing some bikers, even the adults, for the manner in which they wander down the road.

Arena report reason for bylaw revision?

If I were a betting man...I'd have to put my money on the 'arena report' as the reason the recreation bylaws are being revamped.

It's no secret town council didn't like the motion that came out of a recreation board meeting, demanding to see the report. Whether they saw the report is uncertain, as the motion calling for the report was actually defeated, when three abstentions were added to the 'no' vote.

Two drastic changes being considered for the bylaw call for reducing the community members-at-large from five to three and taking the chairmanship out of the hands of the community volunteer and giving it to an appointed member of council.

Town manager Manny Deol says the revamped bylaws will define the board's role,

Frankly Speaking

by Frank Ryan

as one of an advisor.

And, Deol says, by having a council member as chairman will provide proper liaison and direction. This is the same way the transportation committee and the municipal planning commission operate. But, does that make it better?

One other change will be the name. It will go from being just a recreation board to the parks, recreation and cultural board. Ironically, this is what the board was called 10 years ago. Somewhere along the way, the cultural role was dropped.

However, no one should be too surprised about this move, as Councillor Dave Lundberg let the 'cat of the bag' a couple of weeks ago when he indicated to the recreation board there had been talk of disbanding the group.

Charlene Jenkins, Park Valley Pool manager is working in the recreation department. But we're told it's only temporary, as 30 applications have been received for the job. The interviewing process is expected to take another 10 days followed by a DECISION as to who will replace Calvin Bennefield.

Forestry important to Drayton Valley and the area

Letter to Editor

The importance of agriculture and the oil industry to the Drayton Valley area is recognised by most, certainly if the number of fields and oil pumps covering the landscape is any indication.

However, before the land is cleared for cultivation or for a rig, there are usually trees — the resource of our forest industry.

Just how significant is the forest resource in our area? Here are some facts you may find interesting:

Located west and south of Drayton Valley is the Rocky-Clearwater Forest containing over 1.6 million hectares, or four million acres, of forested land. That's more than 25 times the area of Edmonton. There is almost 200 million cubic metres, or seven billion cubic feet, of timber growing in that forest today. Just imagine stretching around the world a block of wood measuring over seven feet high and seven feet wide.

At full capacity, over 60,000 cubic metres (21 million cubic feet) of timber is logged annually from the forest, which about one million trees. This harvest will produce enough lumber and board to build 12,000 homes, and will directly employ up to 600 people in manufacturing and logging operations.

Literally millions of dollars in payrolls, revenues and purchases are generated each year from the Rocky-Clearwater Forest. Keeping track of all this activity is the Alberta Forest Service which maintains 42 permanent and Unlike oil and mineral exploitation, the forests are a renewable resource. This resource is managed so as to ensure there will be as much timber for future generations while maintaining a forest environment of high quality. During the last 10 years, more than four million trees have been planted and thousands of acres treated in the forest following logging.

Considering the value of the Rocky-Clearwater Forest, it's no wonder the Alberta Forest Service spent $1 million in 1986 preventing and fighting forest fires.

As for the future, who knows? Besides building materials and paper, our local forest resource could eventually provide feed for cattle and fuel for your car. So when that oil well has dried up and the pump is removed, let's plant a tree there.

On poor service

Letter complimented

Dear Editor,

I would like to compliment Kelly Stephenson on voicing his/her concern about poor service from one of our businesses in Drayton Valley.

As a local businessman, I would also like to praise Kelly on his/her pride in Drayton Valley and support of local business.

It takes people like this to weed out poor business scruples.

As a balm to Kelly's wounded pride, I would like to dispel some of the disillusion. And to Kelly's advisors who suggested taking the car to Edmonton for servicing, I would like to say that may not have been the right advice.

The possibility of falling into the hands of disreputable businesses in Edmonton is just as great, if not greater, than in Drayton Valley.

It is highly unlikely you would receive the same personalized service you get in Drayton Valley in a large city, especially if you are a non-resident.

There are a number of automotive businesses in Drayton Valley who practice very reputable business conduct.

These businesses do spend the time and expense to upgrade their knowledge and facilities to keep up with the latest advancements in technology.

We reputable business people consider our customers as our valued asset — therefore we care about our customer's satisfaction and motoring safety.

Taking the liberty of speaking for all Drayton Valley businesses, we sincerely hope that when Kelly takes his/her business elsewhere — it is elsewhere in Drayton Valley.

On Monday the Drayton Valley Hire A Student office opened its doors to young job seekers for another season.

Breton High

Well-known author visits school

By Shell Carson
696-2290

Canadian author Cora Taylor of Winterburn attended Breton high school last week to give a reading of her prize book "Julia" to an assembly of students from grades 5 to 12. The book won the 1985 Canadian Library Association Book of the Year award for Children, as well as the Writers Guild of Alberta '85 children's book award.

Taylor also read from her new manuscript entitled "The Doll", which will be published in September of '87. After the reading Taylor answered several questions from the students. The reading was a joint effort of the Canada Arts Council, the Yellowhead regional library and the Breton high school.

The Breton high school library is offering a great deal for memorabilia buffs. For a very small cost you are

Selling Dome to Amoco 'incredibly stupid' move

By Carolyn Vesely

Selling Canada's financially strapped Dome Petroleum Ltd. to Chicago-based Amoco Corp. will end up costing Canadians billions, says Canadian nationalist and publisher, Mel Hurtig.

"We're selling off our companies at rock-bottom prices because gas and oil prices are at an all-time low," he said.

"It's an incredibly stupid thing to do. No other country would do this except Canada."

If Dome is sold to Amoco, foreign ownership in the Canadian gas and oil sector will increase to 60 per cent from 50.

TransCanada Pipelines Ltd. offered to pay $4.3 billion for Dome, but was knocked out of the running by Amoco's $5.1 billion bid.

Dome has been battling bankruptcy for the last five years and is presently carrying a debt of more than $6.5 billion.

Hurtig said the government should block the sale to Amoco and open the bidding to other Canadian companies.

"Profits from net resources should stay in Canada," he said, adding that Dome's (profits) will eventually flow back to Chicago under U.S. ownership.

Amoco has already sent $1.4 billion out of Canada since 1973, Hurtig explained. "A country's assets belong to its people."

Awaiting county decision on diamond, race track

By Steve Fletcher

A baseball diamond and a race track are two projects awaiting the County of Leduc's decision on whether it will lease land adjacent to the Lindale Hall.

The 12 acres of land was recently acquired by the county from Birchwood Village Greens.

Dennis Martin, president of the Lindale Hall Community Association, said his group has been after the parcel of land for nearly a decade.

It has gone through three separate owners during that time.

Leduc County appears "very receptive" to the possibility of a long-term lease, Martin added.

Both Lindale Hall, which is acting as a community

Expansion planned near Lindale Hall and rodeo grounds.

representative, and the Golden Spur Gymkhana Club are working together to obtain a leasing agreement with the county.

Martin said that, if a deal is reached, the ball diamond would be constructed and ready for use by this summer.

Gymkhana president Cameron Campbell estimated the club has been after a racetrack for seven or eight years.

He expects to have the county's answer by the middle or end of June (the county has not yet received title for the land).

The club would like to have the racetrack built this year, although funds for the project are still very tentative.

"We're going to try to reduce the costs as much as possible" through volunteer labor, Campbell said.

The re-zoning process may also delay the two projects.

Donald Martin, who is acting as an advisor for the Lindale group, was reluctant to discuss the land deal. He felt that a resident's complaint could jeopardize the proposal, or at least postpone any decision indefinitely.

But Dennis Martin doubts any complaints will be registered. "I don't think anybody will protest. The community really wants it."

Bus-to-swim being offered soon

The County of Parkland is sponsoring their bus-to-swim program again.

Anyone interested in the program is asked to call Ed Haykowiak, west end recreation coordinator at 542-4632. Nine bus routes have been established to pick up participants. Flexibility is built into the system to allow for changes in the system, in order to pick up county residents.

Soccer tryouts

The soccer season gets underway in Drayton Valley this week.

Tonight (Tuesday) four selection camps will be held.

Players five and six years of age are asked to meet at Mackenzie Park. The seven and eight year olds gather at Park Place on 45th Ave. Nine and 10-year-old players meet at the main field in West Valley Park and the 11 to 15-year-old players assemble at St. Anthony's school field.

Players are asked to be at their respective fields by 6:30 p.m.

Teams signed up to play on the men's recreation teams are asked to be at the Park Place field tomorrow (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. sharp. All players will attend a short rules and orientation meeting at the field.

The YBC

Steve Collyer isn't about to complain about the wind we've been having.

Collyer used his ball on the par 3, fourth hole, Green Green recently, and with the help of the wind, chalked up a hole-in-one on the 150-yard hole. He used a No. 7 iron to land the ball.

Work has started on the new nine-hole at the course club. The $300,000 project is being funded by the town, grants and donations. The project is expected to be completed by July of '88.

Clubs in Lacanville, Saskatchewan, Camrose, Alberta and Wolf Creek, have set up an inter-league program for seniors. A will play four rounds from the five clubs against each other in several tournaments throughout the summer.

The Pinedale course at Stubs Beach opened for business last Friday.

How busy is the Drayton Valley course? Let's see. Last weekend a phone call was made to the course at noon Saturday, requiring a two-hour wait. Their earliest was 2:00 p.m. It was the same story Sunday.

A new golf course has opened at Red Deer. The 18-hole Riverbend course, built by the city, is part of the $25 million Waskaree park system. Twelve of the 18 holes include water hazards.

The 5,790-metre course is located a few kilometres east of the Capital Alberta city. The club includes a restaurant, pro shop and meeting rooms.

Daily fees are $13 for 18 holes during non-primetime and $15 after 4 p.m. and on weekends. Nine-hole fees are $5 and $8, respectively.

Changes to the Ladies course this year include new greens for holes 1, 3 and 5 as well as new fairway bunkers on number 7.

The new assistant pros include Gord Hayward, Shaun Graden and Norman Chaffey. They will work with club professional Doug Phillips.

ATVs

Safety program

The County of Parkland Police in conjunction with the parks and recreation departments are showing the way by implementing the first all-terrain vehicle (ATV) safety awareness and rider training program.

The ATV course offered by the County of Parkland is a six-hour program designed to teach professional skills through practical drill exercise on protective gear, ATV controls, pre-ride inspections, strategies of riding in different terrain, start/stop procedures, principles of turning, quick directional changes, sharp turns, climbing and rider responsibility towards the environment and rider safety practices.

The courses are taught by the Canadian All-Terrain Vehicle Distributors Council Trainers. The courses are supervised by the regional chief instructor who has completed 84 hours of specialized training in addition to instructor training.

The first course will be held Saturday, May 30 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the county services building, one kilometre north of the Stony Plain overpass on Highway 16 west.

Participants must be at least 14 years of age.

For more information, including the registration fee, call the County of Parkland office in Drayton Valley at 542-4632 or 963-2231 (extension 350) in Stony Plain.

Weekend ball camp

The Drayton Valley Minor Baseball Association, in cooperation with the Alberta Baseball Association, held a two-day baseball players' camp and umpires' clinic in town last weekend. Due to unsettled weather conditions, some of the camp was held in the arena. But Sunday the players took to the field. George Bergquist, top photo, helps a young player with his batting stance while some of the younger players (bottom photo) receive tips on hitting the ball.

Reduce community members

Town council planning changes to board

Town council is planning some major changes to the recreation board.

First reading has already been given to the bylaw.

One of the biggest changes on the parks, recreation and cultural board will be the number of members from the community at large. At the present time there are five, but plans call to reduce the number to three. Council will still have two representatives on the board and the county rep will be dropped.

Another major change will see one of the council appointees become the chairman, instead of someone from the community.

It's also the intent of the bylaw, at least in its present form, to have the board deal with items forwarded by the town administrator. In the past, most of the items the board dealt with came from the recreation director or from local groups.

Jack Hutchinson, current recreation board chairman isn't saying exactly why council is taking this action. But he did admit that little opposition is expected from the existing board members.

Manny Deol, town

manager, says the new bylaw will clarify the board's position as that of an advisory role. And Deol says by having a member of council chair the board, proper liaison will be provided.

According to Hutchinson, the changes are scheduled to take place in Jan. of '88.

Soap Box Challenge now a provincial final

Local young people have been given an added incentive to participate in the County of Parkland's Soap Box Challenge this year.

For the first time since its inception four years ago, the event has been designated as a provincial final.

Participants have about a month-and-a-half to get their cars ready for the races.

The 1987 Provincial Soap Box Challenge has been scheduled for June 6. The challenge will be sponsored by the County of Parkland Police and the Stony Plain Rotary Club.

Soap box racers must all be built from an official derby kit containing wheels, axles and steering column (these may be purchased locally at Bumper to Bumper outlets).

Entrants are divided into three categories: the 100 class for six to nine year olds, the 400 class for 10 to 12 year olds and the 100 class for participants 13 and older.

Local businesses and service clubs are invited to challenge one another in the 700 class, Alastair Grant stated.

Prizes and trophies will be awarded in all classes and will be presented by local celebrities on race day.

The races will again be held on Meridian Road four miles north of Stony Plain at Swiss Valley Corner. The road will be closed to traffic on race day.

All proceeds from the challenge will be donated to Forever Green Special Olympics and the Rehoboth Christian Association for the Mentally Handicapped of Alberta.

Annual clean-up

Busy week for Drayton Valley residents

This could be one of the busiest week's of the year in Drayton Valley.

It's the annual clean-up, and if the weatherman cooperates, residential and commercial owners are urged to get out and clean up their yards.

The regular garbage pickup will collect all your lawn and tree clippings.

If you have large items that are difficult to remove from your property such as old car bodies, furniture and appliances, call the town of Drayton at 542-5827 and arrangements will be made to move them — free of charge.

Hours at the dump have been extended for this week. The site will be open tonight (Tuesday) until 9 p.m., Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. There is no charge to use the landfill site.

Everyone is urged to pitch in this week and make Drayton Valley a cleaner place to live.

Breton

Game club contests

The Breton & District Fish and Game Association is sponsoring two contests.

The association is holding a crest contest. The crest should be four inches by four inches, using up to five colors. Some place on the crest include the words of the group. The winner will receive $50 with $25 for second. The deadline is Nov. 15.

They are also sponsoring a bird house contest. Entries will be received up until Dec. 31. There are cash prizes for the top two in an adult and junior class. For more information call Alice Mockerman at 696-2228.

The fish and game association has decided to put a float in Breton's July 1st parade and some Alberta hunting guide books will be purchased for the membership.

Richard Embury wants to wash your vehicle.

Car wash solves lineup problems

Does sitting in a lineup waiting to wash your car or truck get your dandruff up?

If that's the case, the staff at Town Centre Car Wash, located next to Mike's Store, has a solution.

Now, you can leave your car/truck at their facility, and either drop back later and pick it up, or have it delivered.

They also do custom cleaning, a service that includes leaving your vehicle and having it delivered. Or, you can leave the family car or business vehicle at night, and pick it up the next morning.

Their hours have also been extended from 7:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week. They offer two bays for cars and one for trucks.

Richard Embury, Brian Detwiler, Ron Ness, Joe Schwartz and Roger Saran, who works part-time, are eager to service your washing needs.

Local girl collects medals

Dale Bredin may have to consider an addition to the family home.

Daughter Shannon added four more medals to her collection during the recent highland dance provincials at the University of Lethbridge. Bredin's performance at the Alberta finals earned her a trip to the Canadian finals in July.

The 18-year-old Drayton

Valley competitor, competing in the 18-and-under category, won two gold medals in the sword and seann-tri and the bronze in flint and reel.

Bredin and her team mates are busy preparing for their own competition May 28 at the Rec Plex. To date, 150 competitors from many Alberta centres have been confirmed.

Students display artistic talents

Frank Maddock high school students put their musical, dramatic and artistic talents on display Wednesday night during the 'Evening of the Arts.'

Parents and other guests were treated to performances from the concert band, performing arts group, Drama 20 class and choir.

Also featured was an art-work display including water-colors, oils, pencil sketches and Pyzankas, (Ukrainian painted Easter eggs).

The school's beauty culture class showed off its hairstyling handi-work in a collection of mannequin heads configured in popular styles of past and present.

The concert band opened the show with three selections including 'Hosta of Freedom', 'Next Time I Fall' and 'Centuria'.

Then a shoeless group of dancers attired in Bermuda shorts took to the stage for a number appropriately titled 'Bare Footin'.

Next was a special performance from a bass trio comprised of band teacher Blair Proctor on the euphonium, former Frank Maddock student David Boulter on the trumpet and Charlene Jenkins playing French horn.

Wayne Arnold's Drama 20 students performed a with three numbers including 'Shenandoah' and 'That's What Friends Are For.'

The choral group, under the direction of Blair Proctor, closed the evening program series of monologues and some dramatic scenes during a reader's theatre of Oscar Wilde's 'The Importance of Being Earnest.'

Choral instructor Blair Proctor leads the Frank Maddock through the three selections they presented to the audience of last Wednesday's Evening of the Arts. The numbers included a gospel number as well as 'That's What Friends Are For.'

The performing arts group, comprised of Kelly Berquist, Taru Kauppinen, Dana Miller, Juanita Ness and Barb Schoepf join in a dance number to the tune of 'Bare Footin'.

H.W. Pickup beach party planned

Never a slow day in the local schools

By Bill Lysek
H.W. Pickup

Last Tuesday, Miss Hamilton took 12 students to the County of Parkland Hi-Q competition held in Stony Plain, and placed second in the competition. Well done, all of you!

On May 21, the school will be having the farewell dance for the Grade 9 students. This farewell is a casual affair with the theme being 'Beach Party.' KPT will be in attendance, and they will have music for parents and students alike. Sounds like a really good time.

Just two reminders: the canteen has been closed as of May first. Also, there is a half day staff meeting May 13.

Frank Maddock
On May 11, beauty culture students from the County of Parkland will meet in Stony Plain for their fourth annual competition.

It is hoped that the traditional success of the FMHS students will be maintained in this year's competition.

The students have just returned from Edmonton where they attended the Allied Beauty Association hair show April 28-27 where they studied new trends and techniques, and these ideas might be incorporated into the county competition. They have also recently completed a two-day seminar given by the Nail Clinic show from Calgary, where they learned application of nail tips and the new soft light gel system.

The badminton provincial competition was held May 1-2 in Valleyview. Mary Dawkins represented the school in senior singles.

Dan Walton visited the school for National Forest week, May 4-5.

The choral group from FMHS travelled to Red Deer

May 1, and will be giving a presentation at Tomahawk school May 12.

St. Anthony's
On Wednesday, there will be a presentation given to the students from the Forestry Service for National Forestry Week.

Registration for Grade 1 takes place May 8.

Tomahawk
A noon hour dance was held April 30, and a good time was had by all.

The Tomahawk badminton B team did well, and to repeat their efforts, the A team travelled to Stony Plain May 1 for their tournament.

The Grade 5 students from Tomahawk school travelled to Frank Maddock to experience what it is like to be in high school. Each was buddied up with a Grade 10 student and spent the entire day with that student, following him to his classes, etc. It certainly is a good experience.

Staff members from FMHS will be talking to the Tomahawk parents about Frank Maddock high school May 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the Tomahawk school Grade 8 and 9 room.

Bretton High
Canadian author Cora Taylor from Winterburn recently gave a presentation to the students about being an author. She gave readings from her book 'Julie', which won the 1985 Canadian Library Association Book of the Year award for children and several other prestigious awards, and she also read from her up and coming book 'The Doll'.

The presentation was well attended and well received.

Bretton Elementary
The kindergarten had a strike-a-thon last Wednesday, and had a ball. On May 1 the school had a Hat Day.

Elementary B
The Grade 6 class had debates yesterday (Monday), with Mr. Day and Mr. Sperling from the high school and Mr. Kelly from Elementary B judging.

The school will be participating in the town cleanup, cleaning up the school grounds.

A meeting for the parents concerning Outdoor Education for the Grade 5 students will be held May 7 at 7 p.m.

Lindale

The grades 4 to 9 students are preparing for a track and field clinic presented by the Alberta Sports council May 11. The grades 4 to 6 students will be presented to in the morning, and the Grade 7 to 9s in the afternoon.

Announced next week

Elementary B winners

Elementary E's 'Name the school' contest winners will remain a secret until next week.

Vice-principal Chris Kelly said there were actually three or four people who suggested the school's new name - Evergreen.

Meanwhile, some form of official ceremony is scheduled for October, when it can coincide with completion of the elementary school's renovations.

Progress has been made in the construction of a sign for the school, which will be affixed to the building.

Kelly said Prevale Construction of Edmonton is in charge of producing the sign, although the logo has not yet been designed.

Correction

Statements about the town's decision about not applying for funds to fight the battle against mosquitoes in last week's editorial and a story in the April 21 issue, were made by the town manager and not the engineer.

We apologise for this mistake.

Man on the Street

The town is not spraying mosquitoes this year — what do you think of this?

"I haven't really thought about it. But it'd be nice if they did spray. I hate mosquito bites. I used to live on a farm with a nearby swamp; you get used to them."

Reserved parking

The parking lot behind the Western Review is reserved for staff, but last week Bill Sanda, who is running the Pembina Riding Stables, borrowed the use of this utility pole to tie up his horses, while his crew went into Ben's for lunch.

'Better Buy Alberta'

Stores to participate

If the Alberta Food Processors Association had its way, shoppers would fill their carts with products grown and processed in the province.

Starting Wednesday, May 6, Drayton Valley shoppers will see a lot of the 'Better Buy Alberta' and 'Be Choosy' slogans in Block's and IGA food stores as a province-wide campaign gets underway to promote Alberta's food and beverages.

This year's 'Be Choosy' promotion is sponsored by Alberta Agriculture and the Alberta Food Processors Association.

Local farm women will be holding demonstrations and handing out samples in the grocery stores two days per week during May.

Drayton Valley District Home Economist Bev Broke said 'Better Buy Alberta' stickers will be placed on or near several of the products available in each store.

She added that draws will also be held for food hampers and entry forms will be available at the display tables.

"They're (Alberta Food Processors Association) trying to eventually replace the imports with locally produced products," she said.

Men's Night a great success

The Kinamen Club's annual Men's Night (April 28) went "great, great and great," says committee chairman Terry Drader.

Despite lethargic ticket sales (only 100 were sold — half of what was hoped for), Drader said the event was a success in every other area.

Approximately $3,500 in profits will go toward the new rec complex. Drader said most of the money was made through auctions in which items were donated by individuals and local businesses.

Drader thanked all those who did attend the event for "helping the Kinamen help the community." Changes are planned for next year's men's night in order to boost ticket sales. Ladies' night takes place on May 12.

High quality furniture

New business hoping for local support

By Frank Ryan
Lorne Kvale believes the residents of Drayton Valley want their own furniture

And because of his beliefs, Kvale has bought a home and moved his wife and two children to town from Rocky Mountain House.

Kvale is one of three partners in Rocky Furniture. While sales haven't been what the partners thought they might be, Rocky Furniture moved into the old Fitness For Life space (west of the Post Office) this week, in an attempt to secure more floor space.

Three truck loads of high quality furniture will be arriving at the Drayton Valley store in the next week or two.

Rocky Furniture's ad in last week's Treasure Hunt supplement included a questionnaire, asking people if they wanted a furniture store in Drayton Valley. Kvale is hoping people will take the time to answer the questions.

Kvale is upset over the local shopper who drives into Edmonton to buy their furniture.

"They can buy 90 per cent of the items from me at a better price. To save five or 10 per cent isn't worth the drive into Edmonton," Kvale said.

Buying furniture via the catalogue is also another concern. He welcomes anyone to visit Rocky Furniture, check out the fabric so they know what it feels like. "I can't understand people ordering furniture out of the catalogue," Kvale added.

Lorne Kvale has shown his faith in Drayton Valley. Now, he's hoping the people will support his beliefs.

Asked, not told, to refrain

Staff, patients and visitors at the Drayton Valley hospital are being asked, not told, to refrain from smoking on the premises.

After reviewing its policy, the hospital board decided not to ban smoking completely, but "will be making it a little more difficult for people to smoke," said hospital administrator Jim Janzen.

Ashtays have been removed from the hospital lobby and smoking will be restricted to designated areas, he explained.

These include lounges in acute and extended care, a TV room for patients and the staff lounge.

Janzen said a complete ban on smoking would be hard on elderly patients in extended care who may have been smoking for 20 or more years.

The hospital board has great respect for individuals. We just hope people will quit on their own.

Aspen growing market

New technology is making aspen a very important tree for Alberta.

And considering the amount of aspen we have here, that's a real comfort. The addition of hardwood chips to pulp produces a high quality paper — a paper that is valued by manufacturers of print, tissues, disposable diapers, even photographic paper.

It's a growing market out there in more ways than one. In fact, that market for pulp and paper products is growing by 2.3 per cent per year. And wood products are even more in demand.

Alberta is rapidly becoming a leader in the production of new wood products. Oriented strand board is one. Finger jointed lumber is another.

The technology for this is coming from research facilities like the Alberta Research Council's forest products laboratory in Millwoods. Forest products research and development has been funded by the province since 1982. In 1984 the Canada/Alberta Forest Resource Development Agreement took effect, which committed 10 million dollars over a five-year period for that purpose. This commitment is now paying off. Oriented strand board, is becoming the board of choice in the construction industry, and new techniques to kiln-dry furniture grade aspen have resulted in the construction of several commercial kilns.

New pulping technologies, new and cheaper adhesives for panel board, the creation of chemical feedstock from wood waste. Technology is pushing ahead and aspen is coming into its own.

There is another side to the growth being experienced by the forest industry. It's a side that means equally good news in terms of employment.

Unlike black gold, green gold is a renewable resource. Reforestation is therefore a primary concern. As you know, Alberta has established a world-wide reputation on the basis of our policy of sustained yield management. This policy has been in effect since the early 1960s and has meant that Alberta's forest resources have been carefully managed so that harvest and new growth are balanced.

Since aspen is a particularly fast-growing species the importance of reforestation — and the need for an increase in the seasonal work of reforesting harvested areas — becomes apparent. And this is work that is right across the board. Every aspect of reforestation, from preparing the ground to cultivating the seedlings at Pine Ridge can expect increased activity over the next few years.

Alberta has the fourth largest resource in Canada. We have the largest uncommitted forest reserve in North America. Our potential hardwood resource averages out to over two billion board feet per year — enough timber to construct 250,000 three bedroom homes or about 10 times the number there are in Edmonton.

First load of aspen arrives.

One-year mission

Mormon missionaries work as Drayton Valley team

Dorothy and Lyle Lybbert

By Carolyn Vesely
After 50 years of marriage and six children, Lyle and Dorothy Lybbert are still working as a team.

Retirement hasn't slowed down the Fort Macleod couple who are in Drayton Valley on a mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

This is the second leg of a one-year mission for the church's elders who recently completed a four-month stint in Bow Island.

There are about 36,000 Mormon missionaries throughout the world, Lyle explained, adding that until recently, only young, single men went on missions, usually for two or 2½ years.

"It's only in the last 10 years that couples have been going, and it's usually retired couples," he said.

This is the first mission for the Lybberts, but they had been hoping to go on one since Lyle retired from his job as a meat inspector five years ago.

"You're supposed to wait until asked by the bishop," said Dorothy. "But then one day the bishop of our church in Fort Macleod asked us to go."

It was what we'd been praying for. It was like the answer to our prayers."

Because of health problems, (Lyle had open-heart surgery in 1983), the Lybberts wanted to stay in Canada, so they chose the Calgary-Canada mission. It includes all of Alberta up to the Northwest Territories and half of British Columbia.

Although they could get transferred anytime, the Lybberts expect to stay in Drayton Valley until the end of October.

Lyle and Dorothy agree this is their first and last mission and admit they wouldn't mind retiring in Arizona.

But for now, they plan to go home to their 80-acre 'play farm' in southern Alberta where they can be close to their six children, 28 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

Fuel tax will hurt local truckers

By Steve Fletcher
Increasing the cost of fuel by five cents a litre will only aggravate a business already hurt by the oil bust, local truck drivers say.

The provincial government's new fuel tax, to begin June 1, is definitely going to have a detrimental effect," says John MacKenzie, manager of Mack and Mann Trucking, Ltd.

"(Hourly rates) have softened up right now. We're better than 50 per cent off (in business) from last year."

MacKenzie added the tax would "make it difficult" for the trucking industry to remain solvent at a time when oil companies are calling for a reduction in hauling rates.

Mack and Mann's fleet of trucks has declined from 17 to 11 in the past year, due mainly to the dropping price of oil. Most trucking lines in Drayton Valley are dependent on the oil companies for business.

Another local truck driver, who wished not to be identified, believes the fuel tax will cost the average trucker roughly five per cent of his current profits.

"The market won't allow you to maintain your profit margin," he said. "Usually when your costs went up, you passed it on. But now the oil companies are crying for just the opposite (lower rates)."

Despite the grim prognosis, the trucker had no quarrel with the government for implementing the tax, saying the money may be put to good use.

Truck driver Ken Heinrich said the fuel tax will probably not have a detrimental effect on his business, but it may force over the brink those trucking lines currently facing financial difficulties.

"It's definitely going to make a difference to some. For those on the verge (of bankruptcy), that's all it's going to take to put them under."

School budget

County delays final decision

The County of Parkland Board of Education isn't expected to approve its 1987-88 budget before May 26.

Assistant superintendent Walter Heppeler said last week the trustees were still "mulling over" the proposed budget and could conceivably make further reductions in expenditures.

The board of education earlier approved an 8.8 per cent increase in its "stub" budget covering the first eight months of '87.

The 1987-88 operating budget was developed on the assumption that revenue from provincial grants would be reduced by three per cent in all categories. Now, that is expected to reach 3.9 per cent.

Bringing expenditures in line with reduced revenues will mean eliminating 25 in-tern teaching positions, seven full-time equivalency non-certified positions and one certified position.

Learning the ropes

At Tuesday night's fire practise

By Steve Fletcher
It's Tuesday night. The hockey playoffs may be on television, but fire practise takes precedence for the 21 volunteer firefighters who make up the Drayton Valley Fire Department. It's just one of many sacrifices.

The '87 training schedule, part and parcel of the Tuesday night sessions, includes instruction in CPR and first aid, dangerous goods awareness, emergency response driving, ventilation techniques and practises, team, drafting and relay pumping, hose handling, rescue training, and hall and vehicle maintenance.

Last week, the firefighters were refining their skills with ropes and ladders.

Lt. Brian Fuglerud said every member now has a valid first aid certificate.

The fact that the Emergency Medical Technicians are also volunteer firefighters shows how the department tries to work as closely as possible with other services such as the ambulance and the RCMP.

Firefighters learn the proper method for securing themselves on ladders.

Members prepare for ladder exercises at the firehall.

Carrying a ladder properly also requires training.

Fire chief Sheldon Fuson (right) gives instruction on knot-tying an axe in order to hoist it

Firefighters check over the Jaws of Life.

One-building holiday

There are plenty of things to see in Edmonton and many of them can be seen without leaving one building.

Take a trip to Vista 33 in the AGT Tower (100 St. and 100 Ave.) and experience the room 'with a view'. This top floor is entirely encased by huge windows, with panels all around explaining what you're seeing from different windows. Some 2,500 square miles of the city can be seen on a clear day, including the pyramids of the Muttart Conservatory, Commonwealth Stadium, Northlands Coliseum, the university and much more.

Also located here is the Man and Telecommunications Museum, with hands on displays of the history of telephones and telecommunications. The charge for all of this is just 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

When visiting Alberta's capital be certain to tour the Legislature building. The graceful Victorian architecture of the building was completed in 1912. A tour, which takes in the legislative assembly room, statuary of famous Albertans and other special features of the structure, is well worth your time. And you can hear the carillon ring at noon and 8 p.m. daily as well as at a half-hour recital Sundays at 1 p.m. A distinctive sight in Edmonton's river valley is the Muttart Conservatory, housed in four pyramid shaped structures. This is a great place to take a winter vacation, to the desert, to the tropics or the continent. Admission is only $2 for adults.

Most of us would rather be ruined by praise than saved by criticism.

MUNICIPAL LIBRARY

By Lois Peterson
Loralee Yurkiewicz won the 'count the Easter eggs' contest with her guess of 279 eggs, the closest entry to the actual 278 in the jar. Loralee takes home the glass jar of eggs and the Rainbow Rabbit.

Ten reasons to read to your child:

Because when you hold them and give them this attention, they know you love them.

Because reading to them will encourage them to become readers.

Because children's books today are so good that they are fun even for adults.

Children's book illustrations often rank with the best, giving them a lifelong feeling for good art.

Books are one way of passing on your moral values to them. Readers know how to put themselves in another's shoes.

Because, until they learn to read themselves, they will think you are magic.

Because every teacher and librarian they ever encounter will thank you.

Because it's nostalgic.

Because, for that short space of time, they will stay clean and quiet.

Because, if you do, they may then let you read in peace! (YRL Newsletter courtesy A. Scarpellino, Marigold Regional System)

Your library has recently added a good selection of worthwhile new books to the children's area: Berenstain Bears series; There's a Wocket in My Pocket & McElligott's Pool (Dr. Seuss); Wyken, Blyken and Nod Field 8114; Velvetten Rabbit (Williams); Thomas' Snowsuit; (Munsch); Children's Book of Prayers (Hague 242.82); Revolting Rhymes (Dahl 821.914); Care Bear Book of Poems (Katz 811) and New Baby Book (Kiester 649.1).

Ask at the desk for a free calendar sheet "My Library Books Are Due." All you have to do is post it in a convenient place and circle the dates your library books must be returned. A great way to keep those fines from catching you unaware!

Watch for the library's annual spring cleaning book sale coming in mid-May. A good opportunity to stock up on some reading bargains for the summer.

Board req'd to vote on motions

Recreation board members will be required to vote on motions unless there is a valid conflict of interest.

That action follows a recent incident where three members of the board abstained, and their vote was considered as negative. It played a major role in turning around a board decision on the town's arena study.

The recreation board had voted 3-2 to ask council if they could see the arena report. Three members abstained. Administration considered the three abstentions as negative votes, and as a result, the motion was defeated 5-3.

To clear the air, Welsh & Company, barrister and solicitors for the town, were asked to comment.

A two-page reply from Michael Terrell stated in part, "That if certain members of any board or committee refuse to vote on issues, they are rendering their board or committee ineffective. It should be clearly pointed out that there are times when a board or committee should abstain from voting due to a valid conflict of interest."

"The rationale behind the requirement to vote is very simple. If boards were permitted to abstain from voting for any reason whatsoever, boards or committees could potentially be hamstringing and no decisions or recommendations could properly be made by the board. Unfortunately, if board members do not wish to vote without a legitimate reason, in all fairness to the board, they should resign."

"Based on our discussions, it would appear that your committee and board members are taking their position seriously and at attempting to do the right thing. We would suggest that they become familiar with proper board procedure so that they are aware that they do have the option of making a motion to consider, rather than abstaining from the vote," Terrell added.

Nobody likes hard work more than the person who pays for it.

There's nothing like a helping hand from a friend when your wheels won't turn. Of course, it's also less tiring if someone else does the footwork.

Due to mild winter, Alberta wheat growers concerned about crop disease...

The Alberta Soft Wheat Growers Association is concerned about the potential for severe disease problems in this year's soft wheat crop, says an association spokesman.

The severity of the disease problems will depend on the weather conditions during the growing season, says Will Van Roessel of Bow Island, chairman of the association's research and promotion committee.

"A hot dry summer, such as in 1985 will restrict disease development," he says. "However, a cool and damp growing season could result in a disaster."

Van Roessel says the three main areas of concern include stripe rust, foliar disease and root disease.

"With the mild winter and the wet fall, the possibility of stripe rust overwintering on winter wheat could seem at least as likely as last year," he says. "The best solution is to grow Owens variety. The next best alternative is careful monitoring of fields and being prepared to use a fungicide if necessary."

He says by late May plant pathologists may have an indication of the winter survival of stripe rust in southern Alberta.

The next area of concern is other foliar diseases, such as tan spot and septoria leaf blotch.

"These diseases were very prevalent last year and generally overwinter on stubble," says Van Roessel. "The disease carryover will likely be most severe on fields that were not well worked after harvest."

"If a grower must seed soft wheat on stubble and the trash should be well worked or preferably plowed down. Application of a fungicide could be profitable in some cases."

Another potential problem is root disease, such as take-all root rot. Crop rotation is the only way to minimize this disease problem, says the spokesman.

Van Roessel says the recent registration of the fungicide Tilt, marketed by Ciba-Geigy is good news to soft wheat growers. It will control most foliar diseases for three to four weeks after application. However, it will only be available on a restricted basis for 1987.

For more information on soft wheat disease problems contact Will Van Roessel, at the Alberta Soft Wheat Growers Association in Bow Island at 545-6598.

Farm safety campaign

Farm chemicals are an essential tool for modern agriculture and in fact without them, crop yields would be reduced by an estimated 30 per cent.

Without the ability to control weeds, insects and diseases, crop quality would also be reduced. At the same time, these products must be used carefully and with caution. Farmers, as well as other users, should follow basic handling recommendations including the use of recommended safety equipment.

In order to encourage improved chemical handling practices, the Crop Protection Institute of Canada, in conjunction with Health and Welfare Canada, has announced the initiation of a safety campaign known as "Farm chemical safety is in your hands."

Jack Elliott, president of CPIC, says that, "Although most farmers do a good job of following safety guidelines, our surveys show not everyone makes a point of using basic safety equipment such as gloves, respirators and goggles. This equipment is not only a matter of common sense to reduce possible exposure to chemicals, but I think it is important to demonstrate that we can use those necessary products properly."

Elliott goes on to say that, "There is a concern the use of crop protection products will come under increasing and unnecessary regulation if safe handling practices are not improved."

The safety campaign in its first phase will consist of posters, decals and information releases that establish a "rubber glove zone." The intent is to place this information at retail outlets, on spray tanks, in storage sheds, on nurse trucks and in effect, near any location where chemicals are being handled. The objective is to provide a constant reminder the use of rubber gloves can reduce up to 80 per cent of the potential exposure to chemicals during loading and application. This was recently demonstrated in a research project conducted at Regina by Agriculture Canada using the herbicide 2,4-D.

Gloves should be made of neoprene or unlined rubber. These materials not only provide adequate protection, but they can be washed. Gloves made of cloth, leather or other material should not be used. The Agriculture Canada report from Regina confirms this recommendation by stating, "The unpredictable nature of exposure to the hands and the large contribution of hand exposure to total exposure emphasizes the need for reliable hand protection."

Elliott says, "We are fortunate to have the use of a wide range of thoroughly tested products — products which are safe for use as directed — but we as an industry must work to communicate the safe handling message more effectively. We are pleased to be able to work closely with Health and Welfare Canada on this program. Their participation and cooperation will have a positive impact on increasing proper farm chemical handling."

The Move Is On

Employment programs being offered

A new program under Alberta Career Development and Employment began April 1. The program, Alberta Business and Community Development, will pay wage subsidies of $6 per hour to a maximum of $200 per week per new employee hired, to private sector employers, non-profit organizations, municipalities, and other publicly-funded agencies.

Public sector employers will also be eligible for additional funding up to $125 per week per employee for project-related costs. The intent is to subsidize projects which create new employment and which benefit the community and business. Projects which support the environment, community or regional development, economic diversification or productive improvement will receive priority funding.

Some of the other programs presently operational

MLA's Report
with Shirley Cropp

under Alberta Career Development and Employment are:

Alberta Wage Subsidy Program - to create new job opportunities in the private sector for unemployed Albertans or, in some cases, to retain existing part-time employees who may be considered for full-time employment. Eligible employers are businesses and farms, which are reimbursed for wages on a cost-shared basis of up to $2.50/hour.

Alberta Youth Employment and Training Program (1) Post-secondary internship and training, designed to help recent post-secondary graduates obtain employment related to their field of study. Employees must be hired on a full-time basis for 12 months. Private sector, non-profit organizations, hospital and school boards and municipalities are the eligible employers and wages are on a cost-shared basis of 50 per cent of employee's salary up to $3.75/hour or $7,000/year.

(2) Youth work experience and training for 17-24 year olds who are not post-secondary graduates. Employees must be hired on a full-time basis for six months. Eligible employers are as in (1) and wages are on a cost-shared basis of 50 per cent of salary up to $3.50/hour or $15,000 or $75/week training subsidy for approved training ($3,000 bonus at the end of 12 months if the person is still employed, however, no additional wage subsidy for second six-month period).

Alberta Training Program - to upgrade Alberta's labor force by providing job training and skill development incentives. Wages are provided on a cost-shared basis up to a maximum of $7.50/hour or $300/week per employee; as well, partial instructional costs may be provided.

These are only some of the programs that are available through Career Development and Employment. Further information on any of their programs may be obtained by calling the career information hotline in Edmonton, 422-4266; or dial "0" and ask for Zenith 29140.

Westerra now 'different'

The bombshell has exploded but the orders aren't yet clear.

The announcement by Alberta Advanced Education Minister Dave Russell that Westerra Institute of Technology has been stripped of its board of governors was less damaging than many had feared. Rumors circulated for many weeks prior to the announcement that Westerra would be merged with the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology.

Doing away with Westerra's board of governors maintains the corporate identity and autonomy of the institute, Russell said.

But does it? Autonomy, after all, means the "right of self-government, personal freedom, freedom of will."

To say that Westerra is any longer autonomous is to create an entirely new definition of the word.

Appointing an employee of advanced education as administrator in place of a board with local representation is tantamount to a provincial "take-over" of the institute.

Westerra is now "different" from any other college or technical institute in Alberta. Will it any longer be considered their equal?

Westerra no longer has a voice on the provincial council.

council of college and institute presidents. Will be now be considered a lame-duck administrator, no longer equal to his former colleagues?

The change in Westerra's status within the community of colleges and institutes may not have an immediate effect but it could have far-ranging consequences down the road.

As the government continues slashing budgets in the coming years, the collective voice of post-secondary facilities may become more and more crucial to the future of education in Alberta.

What seems clear is that Russell could have taken steps to increase the enrolment of Westerra, thereby making it more economically viable, instead of moving closer to shutting down the facility.

Over-subscribed programs at other institutes could have been transferred to Westerra, for instance. Instead he's chosen to transfer some of Westerra's existing programs to other institutes.

French immersion

Parents thinking of enrolling their children in a French immersion program shouldn't worry if their children are smart enough to learn the language.

Nor should they fear their child will suffer when it comes time to learn how to write in English.

Not all the answers are definite, but most research indicates children enrolled in immersion programs do just as well in English subjects as unilingual students, according to Emile Mandin, an educational consultant from Alberta Education.

Mandin, along with French immersion student Scott Ozeroff, and a panel of teachers and parents, addressed a group of interested parents at Queen Street school recently on the topic of the French immersion alternative.

Ozeroff, who is now in French immersion at Woodhaven school, told parents that he took all his subjects in French, except for English language arts, and that taking French immersion "does not interfere with English studies."

"There's a great advantage in being involved in French immersion," Ozeroff said, "last year our class visited Quebec; we wouldn't have had that opportunity if we weren't in French immersion."

Being involved in the French immersion program has several benefits, Mandin said. "There is an increase in employment opportunities, and cultural enrichments."

Many universities have French as a requirement for enrollment, and students involved in the French immersion program, "can share and explore new horizons."

Stimulating ideas about tourism exchanged

Several representatives of the Battle River Tourist Association (BRTA) attended the recent 18th conference of the Tourism Industry Association of Alberta (TIAALTA) coupled with the third annual Alberta Conference on Tourism in Red Deer.

More than 200 delegates from across Canada attended the conference with the theme "Playing to Win."

Representing BRTA at the conference were BRTA president Rolf Jacobsen and manager Sylvia Clemens. Other individuals attending from the Zone 5 area included Arlen Adams, Bashaw; Gerald Beach, Devon; June Hughes, Wetaskiwin; Bryce Woodrow, Castor; Inga Jacobsen, Betty Gabley, Vi Sparrow and Maudy Sparrow of Sedgewick; Edna Kary, Veteran; Jean Mac Donald, Erskine and Al

Walkey, Camrose.

The conference included most informative workshops and panel discussions covering a wide variety of topics. The series of workshops provided tourist industry leaders with a wealth of stimulating ideas and challenges to innovate and improve.

BRTA delegates were actively involved in the conference. Gerald Beach was appointed resolution chairman and as such conducted that portion of the plenary sessions. Adams, MacDonald, Walkey and Clemens each were workshop speakers.

BRTA was pleased to have their nominee, Arlen Adams of Bashaw elected to the TIAALTA executive in the position of vice president of finance.

In the awards portion of the conference BRTA was out front and centre as the association was selected to win the Gray Line Award for having the best performance of the 14 Alberta tourism zones in 1986. In the media awards, the Coronation Review was selected for the production of a special tourism edition produced in early 1986. BRTA and the Coronation Review each were presented with an engraved plaque.

In a special general session, Minister of Tourism LeRoy Fiordbotten and TIAALTA president Dr. Brent Ritchie shared the stage and addressed the delegates on recent initiatives and developments affecting Alberta's tourism industry. It allowed a unique opportunity for delegates to question leaders of the public and private sectors about their commitment to tourism in Alberta.

Overall BRTA delegates agreed the conference was a significant event and the theme Playing to Win was certainly timely with the current increased emphasis being placed on the tourism industry.

Making consumers aware of Better Buy Alberta

Grocery shoppers in Block's Food Store and IGA will soon see local farm women promoting Alberta produced and/or processed food products.

These food demonstrations will be held in each store, two days per week for the month of May. It is part of a province-wide 'Better Buy Alberta' campaign. Also watch for advertising in the local paper as well as food hamper giveaways.

The 'Be Choosy' promotion is sponsored by Alberta Agriculture and the Alberta Food Processors Association. It is intended to make shoppers aware of products that are grown and processed right here in our own province. Many products in the grocery store will have a Better Buy Alberta shelf sticker next to them on the store shelf for easy identification. Making Better Buy Alberta products a household term is one of the goals of the Alberta Food Processors Association (AFPA), according to Judy Dietz, a representative of the association.

The AFPA was formed about 11 years ago to aid promotion and reliable distribution of information regarding Alberta Food Processors. Many people don't know just how big our Alberta food industry really is. The food and beverage industry here accounts for 33.9 per cent of the province's economy. Food and beverage processing companies employ about 16,000 full time people and a significant number of seasonals. Add to that the many spinoff industries such as packaging, research, promotion and advertising. So, buying Alberta food products means supporting the province and the people in it.

There are about 170 members who belong to the AFPA. Many of these companies' products are labelled with the Better Buy Alberta product symbol. Look for it in stores when shopping.

The list of food products bearing the Better Buy Alberta logo is as varied as the province itself. The meat industry is by far the largest sector in terms of both employment and sales. Alberta beef, pork, lamb, poultry and fish (under the Billingsgate Fish label) all make a great start to a meal. Sausages and other processed meats under such labels as Gainera, Van's Deli Farms and Fletchers are all Alberta produced and processed.

Every meal needs a vegetable to be complete. Alberta processors provide variety ranging from northern grown potatoes packed by Edmonton Potato Growers to Money's mushrooms and Taste Tells canned vegetables by Empress Foods. Living Foods, a Camrose company, produces alfalfa sprouts. This could be a good substitute for California lettuce.

Pasta products can add pizzazz to your meals. By varying event the shape of the pasta each dish appears new. Look for labels such as Catelli, Roma, Manifce and Splendor.

Alberta grown grains are also the basis for tempting breads and buns made in dozens of bakeries across Alberta — McGavins, for example, or the Alberta Bakery. By purchasing bread made by these bakeries, you are helping the agriculture industry.

Time is at a premium for most of us. If you find you need a quick meal, mixes such as Coyote pancake mix can help you out. Or, start your day with Sonny-Boy cereal and Rosebud pancake mix.

Dairy products are important in each of our diets. NADP (Nu-Maid), Palm, Alpha and Lucerne are commonly found in stores. As well, ice creams such as Fiesta (by NADP), Sara's Old Fashioned (Bendick Ice Cream Factory) and Pincocchio Italian ice cream carry the Better Buy Alberta banner.

Alberta cheeses such as Armstrong, Clover Leaf and Faith Farms add necessary calcium to casseroles or quick breads.

There are a lot of snacks with an Alberta label. Alberta's sunflower seeds. Company's Coming products (made by Choice Foods Ltd.), Highland pickled eggs, Sundland cookies and even Cheemo pyrogees or pita bread by Byblos Bakery.

There are hundreds of Better Buy Alberta products to choose from, so be choosy. If you would like a complete listing of the AFPA membership list and product brand names, give me a call at 542-5368.

Environment Week

Albertans are urged to lend their support, and participate in Environment Week '87 being observed May 31 to June 7.

Individuals, groups, community associations, municipalities and educational institutions are urged to participate with their own programs during the designated week.

Through meetings, contests, clean-up programs, recycling projects, tours and other educational projects, all interested parties can get involved. For more information or for assistance in organizing a project contact Janet Austin or Peggie Graham in Edmonton at 427-6267.

Agriculture census soon to be released

Agricultural information collected during the 1986 federal census will soon be available to Alberta farmers and others interested in the agriculture industry.

Chuck Sterling, head of Alberta Agriculture's statistics branch in Edmonton, says information collected in the 1986 Census of Agriculture, which was part of the general federal census, will soon be released.

"The agriculture and natural resources division of Statistics Canada has announced tentative release dates for the census data," says Sterling. "The release of this information will be of benefit to many users of agriculture census data."

Federal officials will be releasing information on the following proposed dates: April 28, Canadian and provincial farm numbers and farm area; June 3, Canadian and provincial data on all other questions asked on the census questionnaire; and June 28, a breakdown of all questions asked in the census according to county, municipal district and improvement district in Alberta.

"The statistics branch of Alberta Agriculture is the focal point for agriculture census data and will be receiving the data shortly after the scheduled Ottawa release time," says Sterling.

The branch intends to prepare summary release data for Alberta to be sent out to interested clients. These summaries will highlight agricultural facts and figures according to the province's agriculture districts. Anyone wanting a copy of data should contact Alberta Agriculture statistics branch staff in Edmonton, at 427-4011.

Grants in lieu of taxes

Town council has decided to consider individual applications from recreation clubs and organizations for grants in lieu of taxes.

While council does have the authority under the Municipal Taxation Act to cancel amounts applicable to taxation, it has been council's policy that no cancellation be allowed. Rather a grant-in-lieu of taxes may be awarded to an organization based on individual circumstances.

It was recommended to the last council meeting to continue with this policy, and that each recreational organization be required to pay taxes as per the issued tax notice. Requests from clubs or organizations to receive the grant-in-lieu of taxes can be submitted to council, and they will determine whether a grant will be issued based on the merits of each individual application.

Any possible grants in lieu will be included in the yearly budget, and will be completely separate from the issue of taxing specific properties.

Danger

Traffic using the highway between Tomahawk and Berrymoor had to slow down last week for this washout. Several large tank and gravel trucks have been observed lately.

First since '65

Brand inspection fees increased

For the first time in more than 20 years, brand inspection fees in Alberta have been increased, keeping pace with the cost of similar services in other provinces.

C.W. Herbert, acting head of Alberta Agriculture's regulatory services branch, says livestock brand inspection fees will increase from 20 cents to 50 cents per head.

There will be a minimum inspection fee of $5, unless the inspection takes place at a market, country sale or feedlot.

The yearly horse permit (a permit which can be bought by anyone transporting a horse in Alberta) goes from $1 to $2 per year.

Herbert says the fee increases, which went into effect April 1, are part of the provincial government's policy of recovering costs for services, while at the same time maintaining an essential level of service to the livestock industry.

"Brand inspection fees have not been increased since 1965 in Alberta and these new levels will bring them in line with other western provinces," he says.

Alberta has an extensive system of livestock brand registration and brand inspection service. This program registers brands to individuals or companies and that brand is applied to livestock owned by them for identification. This brand is a permanent mark identifying livestock through the produc-

Parkland Police

Sister force in U.S.

A member of the County of Parkland Police has discovered there's another Parkland Police force in North America.

Cpl. Gary Hubka got in touch with Chester Kowalski, acting director of the police and public safety department in Parkland, Florida, after discovering an address for the city administration office while digging through telephone directories at the Edmonton Public Library.

The parents of a fellow officer in the County of Parkland, Florida, returned from their holidays in Florida with a department shoulder patch, Hubka explained.

Once he became aware of the American department's existence, it was simply a matter of time before he tracked it down. He's an avid police insignia and memorabilia collector.

Kowalski has thus far provided him with a shoulder patch and breast badge, as well as a little information about the Parkland, Florida police. The acting director has also indicated he's interested in developing the sister department concept a little further by exchanging other insignia and information.

"It wouldn't be a bad idea, seeing how it's Florida, to go on an exchange," Hubka joked. "I don't think the U.S. chief would go for it, though."

Parkland, Florida is a 20-year-old city which takes in about 14 square miles. It has a population of 12,000 but is projected to grow to over 40,000 in the coming years.

The police department of 13 members handles both law enforcement and fire protection duties.

tion/marketing cycle.

"The brand is the most efficient method of identifying livestock and the system of inspection that Alberta has in place gives livestock owners very good protection against theft of animals and in recovering livestock that has strayed," says Herbert.

Is your child safe?

Each year thousands of children become victims of accidents in and around the home. You can reduce your child's risk of injury by ensuring a safe environment.

The federal government passed stringent new safety standards for cribs last fall. Make sure you select a crib that meets all safety standards, and keep it in good condition.

Remember that children's sleepwear and clothing can burn easily and that your child should not play near fireplaces, stoves or heaters. Polo-style pyjamas are safer than loose fitting nightgowns.

Provide close supervision if your child uses a walker, especially near stoves and electric cords, and ensure that stairways are closed off.

Exercise to music relaxing, pleasurable

"Lift your knees up, step in time. Lift your knees up, step in time."

Fans of musicals know where those instructions come from. Dick Van Dyke, of course, as the chimney sweep in Mary Poppins.

Go to an exercise-to-music class these days, and it's not hard to picture Van Dyke up front exhorting everyone to "step in time."

Exercise-to-music classes — more often called aerobics classes — are all the rage now. The term aerobics has been popularized by these classes, but it had an earlier beginning, and it certainly has a much broader meaning.

The Active Life for Seniors

By definition, "aerobics means "with oxygen," when you walk, cycle, swim or participate in an exercise class at a pace that allows you to breathe comfortably and sustain the activity for a period of time, you're exercising aerobically.

aerobically.

It was Dr. Kenneth Cooper who brought the term aerobics out of the dictionary and into popular use with his various aerobics books. Following his system, you choose from a variety of activities to earn aerobic points, with a certain number of points per week designed to improve or maintain your level of endurance fitness.

Regardless of the origin of the term, the aerobics class is here to stay. Music and the movement make exercise both relaxing and pleasurable. If you think this kind of class might be for you, here are some things to think about.

Shop around. See what's available at senior citizens activity centres or community recreation departments. Most offer classes designed especially for older adults, as do some of the private fitness centres. Look for a class with a skill level that feels right for you.

Set your own pace. Everyone is different in their abilities so the last thing you want to do is march to the beat of someone else's drum. Follow your instructor for proper exercise technique, but do the number of repetitions you want to do at a speed that's comfortable for you. And stop whenever you want for a rest.

Be sensible. Agility and coordination tend to decrease a little as we get older, so be careful with exercises where you might lose your balance. Use a chair or wall for support whenever it seems appropriate.

Play it safe. If any exercise feels uncomfortable, check with your instructor to make sure you're doing it properly. If you are and it still doesn't feel right, eliminate it from your program.

Finally, dress for comfort. Get into whatever is comfortable and get moving. Clothing shouldn't restrict movement and your shoes should offer good support.

'Gone with the wind' may soon describe farming...

If current rates of soil loss in Western Canada continue, "gone with the wind" will come to be known more than the book or movie — it will stand as a four-word summary of prairie farming.

One of the most effective methods of keeping the soil in place is zero tillage. Zero till is based on leaving the stubble left over from the last crop in the field. The stubble helps hold the topsoil down, but it also acts as an "umbrella". But keeping the soil down where it should be has been costing some farmers a high price in extra herbicides and reduced yields. They're looking at ways of shaving the bill.

At Agriculture Canada's Lacombe Research Station, scientists started considering the economics of zero tillage in the late '70s. After five years of study in central Alberta it was determined that barley yields were lower under zero than conventional tillage and that the cost of controlling an ever-increasing perennial weed population in the zero tillage areas was prohibitive.

Research scientists K.N. Harter and A. O'Sullivan have been working on cost-effective methods of perennial weed control and since 1983, research scientist S.S. Malhi has been working to find solutions to the yield gap which exists between the tillage systems.

Nitrogen fertilizers broadcast across the surface of the land, were not reaching the roots of the plants. More often than not, fertilizer nitrogen was lost from the soil or tied up in organic matter. Producers were not getting what they were paying for.

To get the fertilizer where it belonged, the Alberta team turned to an Agriculture Canada engineer in Saskatchewan. At Swift Current, they found a drill especially designed to "band" fertilizer in zero-tilled fields. Malhi explains, "The drill allows us to place the fertilizer just beside and/or below seeds. As a result, we're able to get the maximum effect from the fertilizers we use."

Whatever tillage choice farmers make, the work at Lacombe has put them a step closer to the time when economics are no longer a factor in opting against zero till and in favor of soil erosion.

Fire Permits Required April 1 - October 31

"THIS SPRING EVERYTHING CAME ALIVE ... INCLUDING THE FIRE I THOUGHT I DOUSED LAST FALL ..."

Last fall Ron Brown did some windrow burning. Cooler weather, higher humidity and shorter days all added up to a safer burn. He followed the rules by keeping his windrows less than 200 feet long, spacing them at least 50 feet apart and leaving a minimum 25 feet between each break.

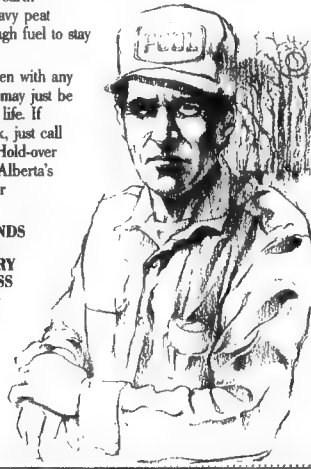

After giving the remains a thorough dousing he congratulated himself on a job well done. But what he didn't realize was that the earth under the windrows was a heavy peat mix...and the fire found enough fuel to stay alive over the winter.

But the unexpected can happen with any burn. The fire that looks out may just be waiting for a wind to fan it to life. If you're uncertain how to check, just call us for complete information. Hold-over fires are a hidden danger to Alberta's forests—and to yours and your neighbors' property.

Mother's Day breakfast set for May 10

By Bernice Johnson

The Alder Flats-Buck Lake and Winfield kindergarten classes, along with Geneva Patten (driver), teacher Denise Bethlamini, Lois Macborski, Marlene Kramer, Lorraine Hammond and Helen Johnson enjoyed a field trip to Breton April 9.

They visited the RCMP station, where Const. Heslop made everyone feel welcome. The children were given a safety talk, presented with safety coloring books, shown the police car and how the siren works.

Valerie Lachance and Curtis Foss had the honor of donning a police cap and talking on the two-way radio. They then had their pictures taken on the front lawn.

Alder Flats News

Following lunch, the kindergarten classes had an interesting tour of the Breton hospital.

The Alder Flats Alamos Square Dance Club wind-up jamboree was held in the Alder Flats hall April 12 from 2-5 p.m. They had seven squares and a few extras. Visitors came from Ponoka, Rimbey, Rocky Mountain House, Thorsby and Winfield.

Assisting caller Ray Tompkins were three guest callers from Ponoka, Rocky and Winfield. A pot-luck supper concluded the festivities. Square dance will resume in the late fall.

Youth programs teach life skills

Rural Education and Development Association is preparing for its 28th year of Cooperative Youth Programs. The program is held at Goldeye Centre 10 km west of Nordégg, Alberta on the David Thompson Highway.

Youth ages 13 to 19 years attend the REDA Cooperative Youth Program for one week during July or August. Three different age levels of seminars are offered. Teen seminars are for ages 13 and 14. Youth seminars are for any 15 to 17-year-old Albertans. Age qualifications are as of Jan. 1, 1987 (eg. to be eligible for a teen seminar, applicants must have been at least 13 years of age on Jan. 1).

Participants of the teen seminars and youth seminars learn skills in leadership and community living. They also learn about cooperatives and agriculture's importance in Alberta.

The grad seminar is for ages 16-18 years. Participants must have attended the youth seminar level or similar programs. The main emphasis of grad seminar is life skills. Grade learn about finding a job or a place to live. They learn budgeting and money management. In short, they prepare for the time when they will be living on their own.

REDA welcomes both participants to the program and sponsorship of participants by organizations or individuals. If you are interested in attending or if you would like to sponsor a youth to attend, please phone 451-5959 or write to REDA, 14815-119 Ave., Edmonton T5L 2N9.

OIL NOTES

Crude To Refined, a four-song album dedicated to the unsung heroes of the oil patch, has received its official incorporation status. Proceeds will go toward an oil industry hall of fame.

Singer Star Cunningham would like to see the project completed in time for the '88 Olympics. She's looking for a town or city in Alberta that is accessible to tourists and will support the project.

Her plans for the Oilman's Hall of Fame include annual winter balls to unveil newest members of the hall as well as summer reunions for oil patch members.

Shell Canada Ltd. has won approval to build an experimental $40 million sulphur processing plant in the Bearberry area near Sundre.

The Alberta Energy Resources Conservation Board said it's satisfied Shell has taken necessary precautions in designing the project.

The company, with partner Mobil Oil Canada Ltd., plans to draw sour gas with 90 per cent hydrogen sulphide content from two existing wells near Bearberry, 15 km south of Sundre.

Upside down shortcake?

Sometimes you get a better grasp of the situation if you look at things in a different way. However, it helps to be as limber as this lass.

Timing crucial to transplanting seedlings

Timing can be critical when transplanting seedlings.

If left too long, roots may be severed and plants lost because of competition for light and food. Here are some hints for easier transplanting.

As soon after germination as possible — generally when the second set of leaves appear — lift a group or row of seedlings and separate their root systems with a nit picker, pencil or plant label. Handle the seedlings by the edge of one of its leaves so you will not damage the entire plant if the leaf is accidentally crushed.

Plant the seedlings in separate containers. Jiffy pots, peat pellets or plastic cell packs are recommended as the seedlings can easily be transplanted into the garden, eliminating the possibility of root damage.

Seedlings will develop proper growth if planted in a loose, well-drained prepared soil mixture such as Redi-Earth which contains peat moss, perlite and vermiculite. This will provide the necessary friable mixture for good growth. Press the soil down to remove air pockets.

Water the seedlings just enough so they do not dry out completely. Grow in cool soil at 15-18 C (55-65 F) under brightly lit conditions (fluorescent lights are ideal for this growth period) and fertilize with soluble plant food at half-strength to promote healthy growth.
